About the program

The Plateau Indigenous Communities Fund was established in 1996 through a bequest from a Flagstaff trading-post family and has since grown through gifts from more than 400 donors. Only the fund's annual earnings are granted, so the fund will support Native communities in perpetuity.

All grants are recommended by the Plateau Fund Advisory Council, seven community members from tribal nations across northern Arizona. The council has identified four core values that guide funding: community, language, culture, and land.

In 2026 the fund awarded $238,000 to 31 organizations, with grants ranging from $2,500 to $20,000. For 2027 the council has increased the maximum award to $25,000.

Focus and impact areas

Focus areas: Indigenous Communities.

We welcome proposals that address one or more of the following impact areas:

- Indigenous language revitalization and immersion programs
- Traditional arts, ceremonies, and intergenerational knowledge
- Traditional foodways, farming, and land and water stewardship
- Native youth leadership, wellness, and education
- Capacity of Native-led nonprofits and community-based tribal programs

Populations served

- Members of Arizona's tribal nations and urban Native communities
- Native youth and elders
- Native language speakers and learners
- Native farmers and land stewards

Eligibility

Geographic eligibility

Applications are accepted from across Arizona. Priority is given to work on or near the Navajo Nation, Hopi Reservation, and other tribal lands in northern Arizona, and to urban Native communities in Flagstaff and Prescott.

Who may apply

- Federally recognized tribes and tribal programs, chapters, and tribal colleges in Arizona
- Native-led 501(c)(3) organizations, or Native-led projects with a qualified fiscal sponsor
- Non-Native-led organizations may apply only in formal partnership with a tribe or Native-led organization, documented by a letter of support
- Schools serving a majority Native student population, including Bureau of Indian Education and tribally controlled schools
- Work takes place in Arizona and is guided by Native community priorities

What we do not fund

- Individuals, scholarships, or per capita distributions
- Projects that commercialize sacred or ceremonial knowledge
- Capital campaigns or endowments
- Lobbying or partisan political activity

Funding

$5,000 to $25,000. Project or general operating support.
